Mechanism of the reaction between carbon monoxide and dihydrogen on TiO₂(110): van der Waals-covalent bonding. The adsorption and reaction of carbon monoxide (CO) and dihydrogen (H₂) on the TiO₂(110) surface were studied using a thermal desorption mass spectrometer, with the TiO₂(110) surface covered by 2, 3, or 4 water layers. At a temperature of 623 K, the TiO₂(110) surface covered by 2 water layers undergoes a reaction with both CO and H₂. The mass spectra of CO(g) and H₂(g) are recorded, and a reaction pathway diagram is proposed. The observed strong preference of H₂ adsorption at the bridge sites is due to the van der Waals bonding induced by the increased surface dipole moment.

The Denali Commission has discussed a 10% property tax increase for local government this year, it was announced Wednesday. Commissioners discussed the proposed tax increase Wednesday morning at the commission's executive meeting. Commissioner John Wesley reached out to the state comptroller's office with the request for a property tax increase for local government, said John Metzger, Denali Commission general counsel. According to Metzger, Wesenmeyer requested an increase of $5.1 million for Denali Borough. That amount would have been split up among the various borough divisions, but Denali Borough Council did not approve it. The Denali Commission will meet next Thursday to discuss the proposed budget and property tax increase for the borough. Denali Borough Council will meet the first week of August to discuss the proposed property tax increase.

This disclosure is generally directed to ion exchange membranes for electrochemical devices such as fuel cells and, more particularly, to proton exchange membranes and processes for making and using the same. Electrochemical devices, such as fuel cells and electrolysis cells, operate using several different types of electrodes including a catalytic electrode and a gas diffusion electrode. One type of electrode, the
