Comparative validation of ALAD and MDRD equations for calculating the glomerular filtration rate in dialysis patients. In dialysis patients, it is necessary to determine the glomerular filtration rate (GFR) and estimate the adequacy of dialysis treatment. Among the various formulas which have been proposed, the most accurate are the Modification of Diet in Renal Disease (MDRD) and the Assessing the Renal Function (ALAD) formula. We evaluated retrospectively the validity of the MDRD and ALAD equations in the calculation of the GFR in dialysis patients. Comparison of the results of 12 dialysis patients treated by dialysis three times a week during a period of 1 month showed a good agreement of MDRD and ALAD formulas with the GFR measured by the inulin method (mGFR). The MDRD and ALAD equations are much less accurate for estimating GFR in dialysis patients than for individuals with normal renal function.Q: The code on the buttons 'code' attribute was not expected I am trying to make a simple circuit to make a lightbulb flash using a button.
